The riddle of the Mary Celeste – New theories continue to emerge

The outline of the Mary Celeste story is well known – in 1872 the entire crew left the well-provisioned, seaworthy vessel in an apparently orderly fashion without leaving any hint of their reasons. Over the years there have been many theories put forward but none has been sufficiently compelling to stop the flow of claims that yet another ‘historian’ has found the answer.

In his talk, Rod Waller assembles the known facts of the incident and then reviews the various theories put forward over the years which some may regard as an interesting commentary on our evolving attitudes to life.

Members are invited to meet in the bar at 7.30 for drinks and a chat before going into dinner at 8 o’clock to enjoy the chef’s delicious Steak & Kidney Pudding with vegetables at £12.50 each. Please book with gala@rsyc.org.uk.
